AROUND THE TOWN

Rev. D. Milton is visiting friends at High River for a few days.

Miss M. Green left on Monday morning's train for Edmonton on a visit to friends for a few weeks.

Andy Sheline, who was employed by O. W. Hembling for some years, has accepted a position as traveller for the Cook-shut Plow Co.

Don't forget Hembling's big auction sale of new implements at the Opera House block on Tuesday. The sale will commence at 11 o'clock. Free lunch at noon.

Messrs. Rasmus Hendrickson of Edmonton, R. F. Miller of Wetaskiwin and Ted Miller of Red Deer were in town on Tuesday attending the funeral of Elias Sick.

Invitations have been issued for the second of the series of the Dramatic Club's dances, to be held in the Opera House on Friday evening, January 18th. This promises to be a brilliant affair.

Watch your $10 bills. The officers of the Northern Crown Bank, Toronto, are sending out warnings that bogus Crown Bank $10 bills are in circulation. The bill is a very poor imitation according to reports.

Mr. Shaw, president of the Western Conference of the Seventh Day Adventists and Mr. Burnham, president of the Alberta Conference, was in Didsbury last week making arrangements for a meeting of the Conference in Didsbury.

The Wetaskiwin hockey club were supposed to have played the same team at Didsbury on Tuesday night but late Tuesday afternoon the local management received word that they could not come on account of sickness of two or three of their players.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Studer gave a farewell party for their son Cecil, who is attending college in Calgary, Thursday night last at their residence. A very enjoyable time was spent by those present in playing games, after which a luncheon was spread at which it is needless to say full justice was done.

Mr. Enoch Siebert has just completed a patent, and the papers have been received, for a device for pulling up old well casings from any depth even though the top of the casing is below the surface of the ground. The machine is to be attached to well drills, and no doubt it will be a pretty handy instrument for this class of work.

Obituary

The death of Elias Sick took place on Sunday night at the residence of his parents in east Didsbury. Although he had been ill for some months and his death was not altogether unexpected, he was well liked by all who knew him and his parents will have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their bereavement. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon, services being held at the house and interment in the Didsbury cemetery.

Quiet Wedding

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday evening last, January 13th, at the residence of the Rev. E. Cox Clarke, Cartas of Mr. H. D. Booker and Miss A. E. Milstead, the Rev. E. Cox Clarke officiating. Mr. H. Wright acted as best man for the groom and Miss M. Green assisted the bride. The groom is one of Didsbury's popular business men. The bride was dressed in traveling costume of prime silk waist with oriental trimmings to match. The wedding breakfast was served at Rev. Clarke's residence. Good luck, Bert.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache. I could not stand on my feet long enough to work and I could not sit without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such drawing sensations I could hardly bear it. I had sometimes in each side could not stand right clothes and was unable to walk. I was completely broken down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after three months I am enjoying good health. I am now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own housework and garden work and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I promise it to all my neighbors. If you think I am a good help to others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE Woodard, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or degeneration. If you have backache, come to me. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know can do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential and the advice free.

In the treatment of summer complaint the most effective remedy that can be used is Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. It is a standard preparation and many physicians prefer it to other preparations. It is a highly concentrated medicine and its salutary and gratifying qualities are well known. It has been a popular medicine for many years and thousands can attest its superior qualities in overcoming dysentery and kindred complaints.

LITTLE WORRIES IN THE HOME

IT IS THESE THAT BRING WORRIES AND MAKE WOMEN LOOK PRETURATELY OLD.

Almost every woman at the head of a home meets daily with many little worries in her household affairs. They may be too small to notice an hour or two, but, however, they are constant little worries that make so many women look prematurely old. Their effect may be noticed in sick or nervous children, in the appetite, pain in the back or sides, salivary contraction, and the coming of wrinkles, which every woman dreads. To those that use GREAT WEST CUT PLUG Pills for a speedy and certain cure, restoration of color to the cheeks, brightness to the eye, a healthy appetite and a sense of freedom from weariness.

Among the thousands of Canadian women who have found new health by using GREAT WEST CUT PLUG Pills, the following is the story of Mrs. C. Duer, London, Ont., who says: "About two years ago I found myself so badly run down that it was almost impossible for me to get out of bed. I fell off in flesh, was weak and very pale, had no appetite, feet constantly cold, and to further add to my trouble, I was miserably afflicted with those other ailments from which so many women suffer. I tried many kinds of medicine but got no relief and began to feel that I was slipping into chronic invalidism. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and although I felt somewhat better, I did not get out of bed for a week, after taking the Pills a few weeks. I felt much better, and a further good effect was brought about in my first time. Now, I have since recommended the Pills to many others, and those who have used them have always been benefited."

Send to all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Real Estate Speculation

It is generally understood that there is not so much wild speculation in real estate as there used to be. The financial institutions of the country are opposed to too much laxity in this respect. It is the general opinion, however, that even yet there is too much boasting of outside property in the different centres.

The Edmonton Board of Trade has taken steps to prevent misrepresentation in real estate. The following resolution was passed at a recent meeting:

"That the real estate section of this board be asked to appoint a committee to interview the provincial government for the purpose of asking that legislation be enacted that will protect the legitimate investor, and will prohibit the publishing of any plan intended to promote the sale of property that fails to show the scale of such plan, and which does not show the whole of the town or city in which such property is situated."

Legitimate real estate business, especially in such a country as this, is very desirable. Reliable firms are in a position to give much information and assistance to new settlers and investors, even if they do make personal gain from transactions. But there is a class of real estate dealers who, sold nor be given a place in the real estate business, we refer to those who make use of exaggerated plans and maps and who will stop at nothing in their efforts to effect sales. They should be classed with the common criminal for their only aim is to make profit at any cost, no matter what the other's loss may be subsequently.

In this connection, The Commercial is of the opinion that too many people are entering the real estate field. As the situation is now, almost every one who succeeds in accumulating a few hundred dollars thinks that there is nothing better than to open a real estate office. This is a mistake. There are many other occupations in this country just as remunerative as that of real estate. From all accounts the real estate field is so crowded now that there is but little in it for any of them, outside of the large and strongly established firms. The Commercial does not favor a monopoly in any line of business, but it looks as if a halt should be called somewhere in the real estate game. Commercial one week the sore disease had spread so rapidly over my face that the burning, itching sores became so painful sores disfigured my face to such an extent

CHAPTER IV.
A Night Walk.

Harry had his valise and stumbled out of the station.

The train had started straight from the sea, revived him. Both the windows of the compartment he had vacated were shut, although he was convinced that they had been opened when he left London.

He was heavy and sick. Unable to sensations of physical discomfort, his thoughts had gone to the last occasion, which he had suffered exactly the same disagreeable symptoms.

It was on a visit he had made with a travelling friend to China-ton, and had some bad luck, and had fallen asleep and been wakened very ill when he awoke.

"I am to live!" he murmured softly to himself.

He went back to the compartment of the train and searched along the floor for a pack of cigarettes he had been smoking. But he could find no trace of it. What was more important was to discover whether he had been robbed by his mysterious follower-traveller.

In the waiting-room of the station he opened his valise with the key he had picked up, and took out what he was worth taking, as far as he could see by a hasty inspection nothing had been touched. In his pocket he had a train to Bloxham, and leaving the station, Harry walked briskly along the embankment by the sea to clear his thoughts before continuing his journey.

By the time he reached the sea he had time to take his hat off and think of his former suspicious and absurd behaviour.

Why should not that fellow stay here? he asked himself.

"He admitted knowing my name well, and since he had to go back to Dorsetshire, he seemed natural that he should have chosen me as his companion.

He was explaining his connection with the Clavels when he awoke.

Certainly he deserved a beautiful woman like Anne.

He had been thoroughly overhauled.

Harry was neat and methodical in trial. He had laid his valise clear, and he had slipped five £10 notes into a compartment in the book, which was a solid Russia leather affair, bearing the initials of his father, with a spring and a stout ebony handle. The leaves of the book had made certain notes, and within a large compartment, and within a large compartment, one containing the letters from London lawyers and from other persons concerning his father and his mother. Mrs. T. G. and A. Ash had asked for. He included copies of his parents' marriage certificate and his own birth registered letter, and the letter from his grandfather, Gerard Worth, insisting upon the change in his son-in-law's name from Clavell to Claveth.

Half of his valise was likewise kept within the cover of the book. Nothing was missing, but the book was apparently to have been brought there into the compartment which contained the letters and par-ters, and Harry was ready to swear that the arrangement of these last had been arranged.

He had prepared them after a certain fashion in order to place them in order, and when he had laid them up in the valise he had the urge to mind to claim the name and the property, but none of this was in proper place.

Some one had clearly gone over them hurriedly, and replaced them with any regard to their disorder, but the man who called himself Leopold Sarto, and who had induced Harry to smoke a cigarette of drugged tobacco, could not justify his extra ordinary conduct concerning a man who had brought Payne Claveth.

Harry Payne had the name of Harry's father, and Harry had a dim recollection of having been told that Claveth was a man who had left the Clavels, and he had been the last to leave the Clavels.
Cognac, the juxtaposition of the two names, however, had attracted the attention of a man who had known and hated the Clavels.

"We are not in the middle ages, the man may have returned through the man may have had an adventure. He never said where he came from by the way, though he asked me endlessly about the Clavels. Well, that's all I was telling him—rather, well, it seemed—before I fell off to sleep? I feel convinced he followed me, drugged my pocketbook, though what good my contents may do him Heaven only knows. Is he a blackmailer?" It is most possible he had got on to Bloxham, but he said he would? I did not tell him I meant to change there, but as he went over my pocketbook he must have found my ticket-book for Croydon before he left.

The incident left an intense disquieting feeling upon the young man, who was very strong and healthy.
After a week's time he had a return to Bloxham, and from that town to make his way by some means to Croydon before nightsfall.

The booking office at Seacombe station was closed, and Harry had some time to think, and to offer to answer his questions. Some had been right when he had spoken of Dorsetshire slowness. The season at Seacombe was not supposed to begin until a week later, so Harry's out of season was not used to bewriting itself. The clerk at the booking-office, when he had lengthened, in an apparently proved to Harry that he was one who was astonished at Harry's desire to leave Seacombe for Bloxham that evening. As to reaching Croydon he pronounced the question.

"You may go there tomorrow," he said. "But you are a stranger to these parts, sir, you will be making a great mistake if you go to Croydon."

Hardly any of the train from Bloxham to Dorsetshire stop there. In the season, the passengers who go to Croydon go to Croydon for an hour or so on account of Mr. Hardy's novels about the country, but there's nothing to do in that small village. Several years ago people made a lot of excursions to Croydon, but they have stopped.

Realizing at last that the attractions of Seacombe could not tempt this obnoxious stranger, the clerk said there was a train to Bloxham, and leaving the
station, Harry walked briskly along the embankment by the sea to clear his thoughts before continuing his journey.

By the time he reached the sea
he had time to take his hat off and think of his former suspicious
and absurd behaviour.

Why should not that fellow stay
here? he asked himself.

"He admitted knowing my name

Westcott

We held our meeting at Westcott and started a branch of the United Farmers of Alberta. President, Mr. John Bellamy; vice president, Mr. Alex Robertson; secretary-treasurer, Mr. M. Hodson. The delegate to the convention at Edmonton is Mr. John Bellamy. A meeting is called for Tuesday, January 23rd, at 8 p. m., to enroll members, elect the six directors and hear Mr. John Bellamy's report of the convention, when we shall know whether the compulsory hail insurance scheme of taxing all land or two cents per acre will be carried or what other alternative scheme is adopted. Afterwards the meeting will discuss that and other measures. All are welcome. Organization is strength. He that is not for us is against us. Come to Tuesday night's meeting and hear for yourself.

Proposed Shipping Contract

From reports which have come to hand, it appears that practically all the live stock interests of Canada were represented at the meeting held in Toronto to discuss the new proposed live stock shipping contract, except the ones most concerned in it, namely, the shippers themselves.

There were delegates representing stock breeders associations, fairs associations, boards of trade, manufacturers associations and government officials, but from Alberta alone was there a delegate who carried credentials from a body of stock shippers and even here the organization is as yet only temporary.

The situation is anomalous and difficult to explain. Alberta shippers, like most Alberta men, are live wires, and they get together and express their views just as soon as they were advised what was doing, but their work is not yet done. It is evident that the entire subject of shipping live stock is about to be investigated. A set of regulations governing live stock shipments has been submitted to the Board of Railway Commissioners by the Live Stock Commissioner at Ottawa for approval. The railway companies reply that these are not needed, that the service they are now giving the shippers is good enough and in their own interest they have submitted for approval this new live stock shipping contract, in which they endeavor to get the shippers to release them from responsibility for almost every conceivable kind of accident, no matter who may have been the cause of it. Another important feature of this contract is the one making it the duty of the shipper to explain to the man who sends in charge of his stock, that in case the attendant is injured, he cannot collect from the company, no matter how the injury occurred, and if the shipper fails to do this and fails to get the attendant to sign a contract releasing the company from all responsibility for his safety, then the shipper is himself liable for any claims for damages that may arise should the attendant be killed or injured while going through with the stock or returning.

Shippers of live stock are the people most directly interested in these questions and the nature of the decision that will be rendered on them will depend very much on the manner in which the shippers represent their side of the controversy.

All that has been done to improve shipping conditions thus far has been done by the stock breeders and stock growers associations and government officials. It is time that the shippers speak for themselves. Had they done so long a time much more doubtless have been accomplished.—Contributed.

Middleton Released

William Middleton, who was arrested with John Anderson and his wife, accused of the murder of John Middleton in Calgary, was discharged last week, as was also Mrs. Anderson. It is thought that Anderson will also be given his freedom. Lack of evidence was the reason given for their discharge. This case has caused considerable excitement in Calgary and is practically the cause of Police Chief Mackie handing in his resignation to the Calgary Council.

Who is "Bob Acres"? And who are "The Rivals"? Ah, that is something you will discover to your infinite delight when you see Mr. William Yule and his excellent company at the opera house on January 2nd in Richard Brinsley Sheridan's masterpiece, "The Rivals." You will also laugh over the sayings of "Mrs. Malaprop," and find yourself quoting that dear old lady on numerous occasions in the future. As for "Bob Acres"—well his duel with "Ensign Beverly" will be one of the things which will linger long and pleasantly in your memory. Mr. Yule comes to us this season with a particularly fine supporting company and an entirely new scenic equipment.

Lacombe have a good bunch of town boys, all strictly amateur this year, and with more training will be a hard team to beat.

The Lacombe hockey team are protesting the playing of Cooksey, point. They maintain that he is an Oak Lake, Man., man, named Jas. F. Gowley, playing under an assumed name. This protest will be formally made at their meeting Friday night and forwarded to the secretary of the association.

The above report is certainly enough to draw the tears from the eyes as far as the interest is concerned, and as for the last part it would make you smile if you knew the truth that Cooksey's name is Cooksey and that he has never seen Oak Lake, Man., so the Lacombe can have missed their guess all out and should be a little more careful of juggling with the truth as it is easily possible to make a blind about presenting the game. Lacombe was not sporty enough to come forward with the guarantee as well as to show their amateur certificates. There is always two sides to a story and this is Didsbury's. If the Lacombe club should be playing in the league, they should drop out of the league. They can get lots of games outside, and they will be well supported by the Didsbury public for their action.

"The Rivals."

William Yule and his talented company in "The Rivals," Richard Brinsley Sheridan's famous comedy, will be introduced at the opera house on Monday, January 22nd. It is a remarkable comedy was written in 1774, since when it has had more revivals than any play ever played before the public, not excepting any work of the Immortal Bard. "The Rivals" sparkles with brilliant wit and is suitable for various situations than a modern farce, whilst the romantic love story holds the audience from start to finish.
